Does not go overboard with homage after to Hitchcock - Owen ( Danny DeVito ) was lucky he had " Strangers on A Train " playing at the local cinema , so the movie flat out tells you that that was the inspiration . DeVito is very funny but also a little sad . He has no friends and all he wants to do is write bother and have someone like his writing . His teacher , Billy Crystal , is going through some serious writers block of his own and his wife has stolen his book and made it her own success , which also has him frustrated a great deal.Best &lt;unk&gt; parts are the book proposal by Mr. Pinsky ( " One Hundred Girls I 'd Like to Pork " ) and all scenes with Anne Ramsey , who is so horrible that even Mother Theresa would have wanted to kill her , too !
0.0254	2	This show is my guilty pleasure all the way ! ! When I first tuned in to America 's Next Top Model , I expected to be bored ; instead and to find it very very stupid . I did n't . This show is actually serious fun . I read on one of the other reviews that it makes you wonder if you have what it takes to be America 's Next top model . And it so does ! Who does n't love the glamour and excitement that come with being a model ? On ANTM you get to see what it 's REALLY like . And who does n't love hearing the girls bitch about each other and get into down fights ? Or enjoy wanting to throw something at that Janice lady ? Give this a chance . Do n't expect something intelligent or a show you can look to for a life lesson . Just enjoy it for what it is . Serious fun !
